

Cozier nominated for induction into Cricket Hall of Fame

Well-known West Indian cricket scribe and commentator Tony Cozier of Barbados, right in picture, has been nominated to be an inductee into the Cricket Hall of Fame. Through the assistance of former renowned fast bowler Michael Holding, a past inductee, a team from the Cricket Hall of Fame that was in Kingston, Jamaica, for the Cricket World Cup, was able to contact and inform Cozier who has graciously accepted the nomination.

Cozier, who has been described by one writer as the 'keeper of the flame,' the unmistakable voice of West Indies cricket, will join a number of other notable cricket personalities who have already made it into the Hall of Fame. "He wears his love for the game (and the West Indies team) proudly but won't hesitate to crack the whip when things are falling apart."

Having seen the best and the worst of West Indies Cricket, Cozier, the dean of West Indies cricket commentators, is at his best talking about the glory days and equally passionate when discussing the low points, the writer added.

Located in Hartford, Connecticut, USA, the Cricket Hall of Fame which was established in 1981 is a non-profit organization whose mission is to help with the development and growth of the game in the United States. Each year it recognizes individuals both cricketers and non-cricketers, local and international who have made outstanding contributions to the sport.

Last year the institution celebrated its 25th anniversary at a gala event in which eight new members were inducted. This year's induction ceremony is set for Saturday, September 22, at the Marriott Hotel, Hartford, Connecticut.
